Trams are the main method of transport in Amsterdam, apart from bikes. The newer trams, the majority, have an accessible space in the middle part. The trams have two entrances, in the middle and in the front. The entrance in the middle is wide, but most of the time not on the same level as the platform. The trams are equipped with ramps, which the conductor can put in place. The less frequent old trams are not accessible as they have stairs at the entrances.

“If you take the tram in the city centre of Amsterdam, it’s smart to wait in front of the shelter on the platform of the tram stop. As such, you can make eye contact with the tram driver and he will make sure the wheelchair accessible entrance stops in front of you. It’s faster and easier to enter the tram.”

Ton Blans, works at the police and Amsterdam Centrum Drempelvrij.

“Schiphol assistance needs to be requested 48 hours in advance. I recommend to be at the airport 1 or 2 hours in advance, this depends on your type of wheelchair.”

Annebel de Geus, likes to visit concerts and lives in Amsterdam.

Visit Starbikes Rental to experience a ride on a special bike. This bike shop behind Amsterdam Central Station hires a bike with wheelchair platform, the Velo Plus bike, the O-Pair bike, the Fun2Go bike, Tricycles and regular bikes.

“My mother thinks that the Hermitage is a very beautiful and accessible building. Also, the Tropenmuseum is pretty. The Museum of Bags and Purses is interesting, but the elevator is quite small and not all levels are accessible with a wheelchair. Though there is a stairlift to some levels. It is a beautiful building.”

Linda Pluimers, owner of Starbikes Rental, enjoys biking through Amsterdam with her mother who has the PROMM muscle disease. With the wheelchair bike, they can explore Amsterdam together.

Small harbour towns

The villages of Monnickendam, Volendam and Edam were once famous for fishing and trading. These authentic towns now offer a stage to try Dutch Herring, to watch the life of fishermen and experience the unique architecture. In the town called Marken guided tours can be organized for people with physical limitations.

Bubbling Zandvoort beach

In spring and summer the boulevard of Zandvoort is definitely worth a visit. Enjoy the sea breeze and the long stretched beaches. Have a delicious meal or refreshing drink at one of the wheelchair accessible restaurants: Beachclub No.5 or Restaurant Thalasssa. Both restaurants have a wheelchair accessible toilet and beach wheelchairs available to borrow.

The new city

The city of Almere is a must for those who are curious to discover a city that is only 30 years young. Modern architecture and nature go side by side. The remarkable national park Oostvaardersplassen (Oostvaarders Lakes) is located right on the border of the city. For hiring mobility scooters or to receive a mobility scooter map of Almere, contact the tourist office of Almere or Accessible Travel Netherlands.

Fortress stretch

Visit Naarden and the Fortress Museum in Naarden. This old fortress town has a rich history and has been visited by many kings and emperors. The Fortress Museum offers good access for wheelchair users.

The Bulb Region

The Metropole of Amsterdam includes a part of the Bulb Region. The most popular flower garden in the Netherlands, the Keukenhof, is very accessible for people with limited mobility. In spring you can visit the flower gardens at Keukenhof with bus 858 from Schiphol Airport. A flower auction can be visited throughout the year at Flora Holland Aalsmeer. Apart from exploring the flower gardens and flower fields, there are also boat trips on offer that explain the history of the Westereinde Lakes. Enjoy a boat trip with the company ‘Westereinder Rondvaart’.
